Thank you for expressing interest in the African Burial Ground National Monument. The African Burial Ground is the earliest and largest known African cemetery that has been excavated in North America. It was used from the 1690's until 1794. In 1991, the burial ground was rediscovered during pre-construction work for a Federal office building in New York City. The remains of 419 free and enslaved Africans who lived during the 17th and 18th centuries were exhumed from the cemetery. The findings deeply impacted descendants and the broader community, while renewing the awareness of cultural significance and historic preservation. The African Burial Ground was designated a National Monument by Presidential Proclamation on February 27, 2006.

Hours and Location:

The African Burial Ground National Monument Visitor Center is located on the first floor of the Ted Weiss Federal Building at 290 Broadway in Lower Manhattan, and is open to the public Tuesday through Saturday from 10:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. The visitor center is closed on Sunday and Monday, as well as Thanksgiving and Christmas Day. The African Burial Ground National Monument Memorial is located at the corner of Duane Street and African Burial Ground Way (formerly Elk Street), and is open daily from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. each day except Thanksgiving and Christmas Day. However, during the winter months, the memorial closes at 4:00 p.m.

Admission:

The African Burial Ground National Monument does not charge an entrance fee. However, donations are accepted.

Group Visits:

Programs are available Tuesday through Saturday at 10:00 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Groups are required to make reservations for programs to ensure adequate preparation and staff availability. Presentations at the visitor center can accommodate groups of 40 people or less, and the programs last for one hour and thirty minutes. The on-site presentation includes the 20-minute film, a self-guiding tour of the exhibits with a brief gallery talk, and a memorial talk.

Advance Notification:

Requests for tours of the African Burial Ground National Monument should be submitted at least two weeks in advance. Please notify the African Burial Ground National Monument if your group will be late. Groups may not receive a full presentation if they are late by more than 30 minutes. Special attention: All visitors must go through airport-style screening before entering the African Burial Ground Visitor Center; and, groups scheduled for the first tour of the day should arrive promptly by 10:00 a.m. Afterwards, groups should arrive 15-30 minutes prior to the time in which their tour is scheduled to start.

Accessibility:
